After many years of creative, uncompromising journey I got to the point where the world of 180-degree reversed values pushed me into freeing my music.

I have decided not to take part in the world's hypocrisy - the simulation that selling music there exists. I don't agree with omnipresent piracy.

As a creator and producer I can not agree with a thievery and charity for a composition I work through sometimes two months, 12 hours a day.

Production of an album with ambitious music takes one year of creative explorations, following tech-news and thousands of dollars spent on gears, software and travels in looking for ethnic sounds.

Wholesale packing of thousands of trashy songs on social networking websites and Youtube or adding bundles of songs for free to telecommunication services, without taking care about quality standards and respect for authors, denigrates all artists who are passionate and it discourages ambitious artists from creating notable works.

It causes degradation of music over the course of many generations. Hypocrisy of our times relies on not taking music seriously and degrading its value because the music just downloaded for free has been listened to by millions of teenagers on their headphones hundreds of dollars value they paid for.

Though they can not imagine a single day without listening to the music, they will not abase themselves buying a CD album in a shop. That's not fair !

I am freeing my music also to protect its original sound quality I have been working on for the last eight years, repeatedly improving the sound.

I would like to share with you my 24-year artistic output consisting of 157 compositions (in a few formats) and 8 videoclips

- a few hundreds of dollars market value. The freeing concerns only my music released until December 2013.

Music means more to me than just digits. This is released divine energy which like a symbolic eagle circulates all over the world.

Freeing music is my protest and a symbol of choosing freedom. This is also a way of sharing the most beautiful, vital energy of life ...
